BEE-KEEPINGIN NEW MEXICO

They Are of Value to the Fruit Blossoms and They Are Clear Profit, as There Is No Cost to Their Upkeep.

By James W. Mullins, Superintendent of Bees and Products, New Mexico.

paper jokerz, aided and abetted by influences in the legislature laughed him out of court and the bill died. The writer has served continuously since the introduction of the Walters bill, but was never able until 1912, after a political upheaval, to secure the passage of any law looking to the protection of the bee keeper.

During the interim above mentioned, the greater part of the San Juan county bee men went out of business through the introduction of foul brood from Colorado, they having no recourse. The Pecos valley bee men, having organized an association, handled the matter through their own members, without any law, and suffered very little from this pest of the bee keeper. They are still suffering from lack of the tree spraying regulation provided in the house bill, aborted by the state senate which, oddly enough, contained two of the very best doctors in the state.

The foul brood law is based upon the principle of the "general good" recognized in the passage of the laws creating the cattle and sheep sanitary boards—and those laws were once scoffed just as bee legislation is now regarded. The expenses incident to the enforcement of all our protective laws are paid by assessments against the property protected by the law.

As a conservator of hyproducts of the farm, the honey bee has no equal. What he stores would, otherwise, be pure waste. The principal item of expense attached to his keeping is in the initial outlay for his house and appurtenances. The present market value of good strong colonies of bees, including the hive, is $7.50. By establishing in a good locality and carefully husbanding, this initial colony can be increased in a season 500 or more percent—that is from a one colony beginning on March 1st the beekeeper, if he is skiiful in handling, may at the end of the season have four colonies,—hot to mention the honey produced. With good strong colonies, where there is abundance of fruit and sliafia blossoms and no untoward surroundings, the honey crop will run from 50 to 120 rounds per colo is his economic value as a fertilizer of the blossoms.

The great natural honey producing belts in New Mexico are in the Pecos. San Juan and Rio Grande valleys, because of the adaptability of those sections to fruit and alfalfa culture. Deming and several places in Socorro county are equally promising localities for bee culture. Thomas Cooney, of Jackson, Socorro county, is having success so far as production is concerned, but reports considerable from the in his negotiations with the bees during the extracting period. It may be explained here that he "robbed" his bees on a damp day when they could not work and when a bee can't work he is cranky. But, anyhow, he got the honey and that is the ultimate object of the man who keeps bees.

During the New Mexico state fair it is proposed to organize a State Bee Keepers' association. This will mean the real beginning of the bee industry in New Mexico, for then the advertising of the products can be carried on in an organized manner. Each new

W. HEN Price Walters, in 1907, introduced a "foul brood" bill in the New Mexico legislature, the paper jokers, aided and sbetted by influences in the legislature laughed him our of court and the bill died. The Pecos valley have taken the bee out of the joke column by shipping over $86,000 worth of honey to eastern markets this year and the season half gone, only. If you think production is a jest, compare this with the amount brought in from jokes, to date.

Ralph C. Ely, of Deming, president of the New Mexico State Fair board, would be pleased to have the address of every beckeeper in New Mexico. Mr. Ely recognizes the immense economic value of the bee and his relation to fruit culture and will make a special study of the industry the coming years while he is a member of this board. Until a state association is formed, this is the best way to secure the necessary cooperation and it will prove mutually valuable to all concerned. Mr. Ely thinks, and he is conservative, that if a proper stimulus could be given the bee industry so that the many fields of undeveloped production were placed on a parity with the Pecos valley, that a million dollars a year could be brought into the state through honey production alone. As this is now going to waste, it behooves thoughtful men to encourage the establishment of bee keeping communities.

A. G. McMath, who was driving the machine at the time of the accident, says that he was blinded by the lights of a big car that passed and did not see the wagon approaching in time to avoid collision. The milk wagon was owned by a Mexican from Clint, but McMath did not learn his name.

FARMING

CANNOT GET BARK: MAY TAKE ANOTHER

Tueson Farms Company Makes Strong Effort to Get Expert, and Failing Tries For Assistant.

Tueson, Ariz., Aug. 14.-The Tueson Farms company after making a strong effort to obtain the services of U. S. engineer Dan Bark, now stationed at Boise, Idaho, may take his assistant. Bark refuses to leave the government service and the government refuses to grant him a leave of absence, hence the company may endeavor to obtain one of his assistants, who has been working under Bark for the past four years. The company's activity is due to the finding of a large stream of artesian water on the Canon ranch 25 miles. water on the Canoa ranch, 25 miles from this city. Seven wells, which have been sunk, delivered water at a depth of 135 feet and the amount aiready in hand is more than sufficient to irrigate the entire tract. This water is under pressure and rises by its own force to within 25 feet of the surface, where it is allowed to fill a wooden pit, from which it is pumped by centrifugal pumps to the ditches.

The company engineers claim that the loss by evaporation during June and July is such that they feel justified in developing more water than it can use under ordinary circumstance, in order to have an extra supply to draw on in case bf an emergency. water on the Canoa ranch, 25

ROSWELL WILL SHIP 200 CARS OF MELONS

Roswell, N. M., Aug. 14-Judging from the interest and enthusiasm of the cantaloupe growing squad this year this product is to become one of the great annual assets of the valley in future years, getting into a market that has but little competition owing to the time they mature. It is expected that 200 cars will be shipped form Roswell and South Springs.

While the melons this year are a few days late in getting into the eastern markets, owing to the cool weather, they are meeting with little competition.

Reports from the market centers state that prices are firm. The far east is being supplied to some extent by the Maryland crop, but they will not injure the markets for the valley ship-The melons this year are of the very finest quality, with no hall, rains at just the right time, and but very little blight and trouble from the aphis.
